LANARCA IS...

...a company created by its two directors to provide tailored and responsive services which are directly driven by the needs of each client.

Benefiting from over five decades of combined experience, each commission delivered by Lanarca is actively led by a director from inception to completion. Our specialist team, working from purpose-converted work space in Nottinghamshire provides flexible, delivery focused services and support for a host of clients across the country. Of greatest importance to us are the relationships which we develop with each client, our understanding of the organisations in which they work and our undertaking to ensure we provide complete support for every commission.

We offer the potential to expand the range of skills in your team - from strategic to administrative, technical to design - and to work with you in applying them to the absolute benefit of each of your projects.

Lanarca brings strength and confidence through sustained director leadership and active project working - to a level unmatched in the marketplace. We achieve this by retaining cost effectiveness, through our intentionally configured low overheads and dedicated support team. We like to work in this way. So we have made it possible for us, by working with clients who demand more - without compromise.

Our satisfied clients who retain and re-employ us are our best ambassadors. Before you contact them, please - read on, so we can introduce our company to you further.

LANDSCAPE IS...

...integral to many of the projects in Lanarca's portfolio. However, the landscape component for each project varies across a wide spectrum, from strategic landscape planning, site specific landscape advice, management and maintenance planning, public parks work, masterplanning and design through to the implementation of multi-disciplinary projects. Here, as contract administrator, Lanarca leads the project team.

Our professional landscape credentials are second to none. As a Fellow of the Landscape Institute, landscape commissions benefit from the direct involvement of Roger Greenwood who personally delivers each strategic landscape or design commission undertaken by Lanarca.

Our company expertise in this field can be demonstrated in a variety of ways. Tangible evidence is given by those design and implementation projects completed on the ground whilst successful strategic guidance and planning can be seen in those commissions where our work is ongoing – having completed the research and planning stages.

If your project is landscape based or you believe it would benefit from a landscape contribution, we will be pleased to review the opportunities with you. Our advice will be based on your needs – captured and translated – with our applied extensive experience, brought from previously completed successful work.

Award winning design, original research underpinning delivery focused strategic planning, bespoke landscape management and maintenance plans – these all form part of our current portfolio and are delivered with flair and creativity whilst maintaining our focus on deliverability.

After all – what good is attractive design if it is not also relevant and sustainable? Our clients value this core and proven company approach to every aspect of our work.

MANAGEMENT IS...

...an embedded aspect of every project delivered by Lanarca. Specific commissions requiring strategic management input include organisational strategies, business and financial planning, interim management, planning for organisational change, advice on governance and economic audits.

Lanarca's approach to management and its applied strategy derives from direct experience gained in the public, private and third sectors. Our client base cuts across all sectors and our resulting portfolio enables us to demonstrate the wide breadth of our strategic management capability.

We have delivered budget-driven service re-organisations, realigned services, prepared maintenance plans and developed the framework for new companies – together with business planning and governance guidance.

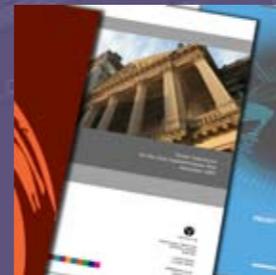

Rachael McCormack's background in the public and private sectors enables Lanarca's commissions to be developed from an objective, original and informed perspective. Typically, this results in the identification of new opportunities or directions, always supported by considered and very real implementation strategies.

Her excellent communication abilities and team management skills, combined with a continuous drive for excellence, enable the development of the highest standards of work - within which our focus on delivery is always maintained.

Our strategies are not delivered in eight or more volumes (which you might find difficult to read) – and you'll be able to do much, much more than hold doors open with them! We're often engaged to take our strategic work to implementation so we're actively accountable for every strategy, plan or business plan we produce. If you want more from your strategic advice than a recommendation for more strategic advice – talk to Lanarca.

LEADERSHIP IS...

...a core role for Lanarca in the co-ordination and direction of teams and projects for the successful delivery of our written strategies, illustrated masterplans, detailed and location specific research, multi-disciplinary construction projects and service areas – to name just some.

Both Rachael and Roger have exemplary track records as leaders. We recognise core leadership abilities to include being able to determine and communicate a vision, to inspire others to help deliver the vision and to engender team work and partnership – even in the toughest of environments or the most challenging of projects.

Together, working with clients who demand the same high standards as us and who expect nothing less than the best support, service and project outcomes (and are discerning in enjoying both their work and the people around them) Lanarca has successfully led many demanding projects in the last five years.

The scope of our commissions ranges from the delivery of a sub-regional investment plan for economic regeneration projects; to the creation of an agreed multi-agency (multi-sector) proactive partnership; through to the completion of a Grade I landscape restoration project where we liaise and negotiate between funders, a private charitable trust and a major national trust.

In all these projects, our exceptional communication abilities have been at the heart of our success. Developing positive and productive relationships across projects and between parties is one of our critical success factors. We make it our business to understand people. We'll work closely with you, not at a distance. We'll get to know you, in order to interpret the needs of your commission. If you'd like to get to know us, please get in touch.
